Course Description
An introduction to the study of music with focus on the characteristics of representative works and composers; common musical forms and genres of various western historical style periods; and appropriate listening experiences.

Prerequisite or Co requisite: ENG 101

3.0 Cr (3 lect/pres, 0 lab, 0 other)

Course Focus
Have you ever thought about how music is written...what has to happen for you to make sense of what you hear...why you enjoy a particular type of music? This class will give you the basic information a composer needs to write music. You will explore how the very elementary music of the 1500s was built upon by each succeeding group of composers until we have the music we all enjoy today.

MUS 105 CORE CURRICULUM COMPETENCIES

All courses approved for the general education core curriculum help students develop communication skills and/or critical thinking.

This music survey course develops students’ communication skills by allowing students to communicate with each other and the instructor via open forums. Students receive goals and expectations early. They are free to receive and give communications regarding these to each other and the instructor weekly throughout the course by listening and analyzing music in various historical eras and cultures.

This course develops critical thinking by the scaffold method. The teacher models, the class reflects the modeling, groups carry on, and finally the individual engages in independent musical analysis. Personalizing the course material develops critical thinking in new applications. The student starts with music that s/he knows, applies new-found analytical tools to that knowledge base, and is then led to transfer these tools to a survey of music throughout history. This is done with increasing independence as the course progresses. Students share their new-found skill sets with each other and the instructor continually throughout the course, and arrive at a new understanding and appreciation of how contemporary music reflects historical precedents.

GRADING METHODOLOGY
The final grade must be 70 or more (a grade “C” or better) in order to pass the course and progress to the next course. Students absent from an examination or presentation will receive a “0” grade for the examination unless other arrangements are made with the individual instructor prior to the examination or presentation day or on the examination or presentation day before the test/presentation is scheduled to be given.

The student is responsible for notifying the instructor for the reason of the absence. It is also the responsibility of the student to contact the appropriate instructor to arrange to make up the examination. Arrangements may be completed by telephone.

If the instructor is not available, a message should be left on the instructor’s voice mail AND with another member of the faculty or administrative assistant. The make-up exam will be scheduled and the instructor will decide the method of examination. Messages sent by other students are unacceptable.
