It is the policy of the Technical College of the Lowcountry (TCL) to provide an atmosphere conducive to learning. Access to information technology resources is essential to the pursuit and achievement of excellence in an academic environment. Access is granted in support of education, research, academic development, and public service that is consistent with the mission of the institution. Such open access is a privilege, not a right and requires the user to respect the integrity of the system and related physical resources, observe all relevant laws, regulations, and contractual obligations, and respect the rights of other users.

Any unauthorized or illegitimate use or violation of this policy shall subject the violator to disciplinary measures. The College reserves the right to terminate access and/or pursue stringent legal action in all matters of noncompliance.