Attention: Avionics & Electronics Technicians

The aerospace industry in the Southeast is in need of qualified, certified, professionals. If you are a transitioning military member in the avionics or radio/electronics field and want to take the next step and attain your FCC license, we have the course for you.

The FCC Licensing Prep Course prepares military avionics technicians and radio/electronics repair technicians to attain their General Radiotelephone Operator (GROL Elements 1&3) FCC license. The course consists of approximately 24 classroom hours of instruction and will require independent student study. The tests will be administered on the last day of the course.

Dates: 22 - 25 June 2015 (Monday thru Thursday)
29 - 30 June 2015 (Monday & Tuesday)

Time: 5pm – 9pm

Location: TCL Beaufort Campus, Building 24, Room 101

Cost: For servicemembers within one year of their End of Active Service, tuition and courseware are funded by the state of South Carolina. For all others, tuition and courseware are $449.00. All students are responsible for paying the $50.00 test fee.
